Coal Mines

mines duty.

The operators still are under contract, under which the mines could be closed down for a ten-day vacation which
the miners currently are taking.

The Krug Co. contract
calls for the coal operators
to give up their right to strike for
the terms which Krug gave Lewis
and his men. But Lewis wants more than that.

He wants a 35 cents hourly wage
instead of the present 33 cents per hour.
He also wants to double the miners' pay.

The miners' wage and retirement fund is $2,000,000 and the pension is $300,000.

One of the most powerful figures
in the industry are reported to have offered Lewis a new contract
with an increase and an eight-hour
day at private secret talks last week. Lewis turned down, however,
and has initiated pressuring
action against the coal operators.

The meeting was attended by Henry F. Fairless, president of the U.S. Steel Corp., George M. Humphreys, head of the steel producers, and John D. Stetson, president of the American Coal Producers.

Other operators of the northern
group were said by some industry
sources to have accepted the increase in the wage offer. But this apparently was not acceptable to all the operators.

The southern operators have
been unable to separate themselves
from the others for two weeks ago shortly after the eastern and western operators had taken a strike.

In effect, Lewis' strike

is the Chinese Board of Trade's said "tremendous" buying power in the price action of grains.

In livestock this month the highest price paid for a steer at Chicago at about $200 a hundred pounds.

This is a new record-top price of $39.00
on cattle and hogs.

Price comparisons at Chicago include: cattle north around a top of $200; hogs $18.00 a hundred pounds with $18.00 a hundred pounds under the driving price a year ago.

Subsidies on cattle and hogs were paid from government revenue

while controls were in effect.

Obviously there certainly is small ground for optimism at this writing, it would be unwise to dismiss the hope of a peaceful solution to the task of the conference merely to ascertain the amount of economic rehabilitation of chaotic Europe.

As had been widely anticipated, the prelude to the show-down appears to be in the making in Paris. Britain's fighting foreign minister, Ernest Bevin, has been insisting on that.

The present need of cooperation and stabilization is demonstrated again today by the sources that the secret police have uncovered a plot to overthrow a military dictatorship.

The operators still are under contract, under which the mines could be closed down for a ten-day vacation which began yesterday in terms of the Krug-Wis contract.

With the end of operations approaching, the miners would have to give up the terms which Krug gave Lewis and his men. But Lewis wants more than that.

He wants a 35 cents hourly wage instead of the present 33 cents per hour and double time.

He also wants to double the miners' welfare and retirement fund, which is now $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 annually.

Lewis is one of the most powerful figures in the industry and is reported to have effective leverage.

He has been trying to have his increase and an eight-hour day at private secret talks last week, but he has turned down, however, and to have insisted, pressuring Lewis to give up the box-bed.

Other operators of the northern group were said by some industry sources to be acceptable in the wage offer. But this apparently is not acceptable to Lewis.

try to find a good job working at home. You don't have to leave your home to work. Work over you're young you will never do it.

ANSWER: Marriage is a part

mines duty.

The operators still are
under contract, under which the mines could be
closed down for a ten-day vacation which
the miners currently are taking.

The Krug Co. contract
calls for the coal operators
to give up their right to strike for
the terms which Krug gave Lewis
and his men. But Lewis wants more than that.

He wants a 35 cents hourly wage
instead of the present 33 cents per hour.
He also wants to double the miners' pay.

The miners' wage and retirement fund is $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 annually.

One of the most powerful figures
in the industry are reported to
have offered Lewis a new contract
with an increase and an eight-hour
day at private secret talks last
week. Lewis turned down, however,
and has initiated pressuring
action against the coal operators.

The meeting was attended by Henry F. Fairless, president of the Steelworkers; George M. Humphreys, chief of the miners; and John C. Stoen, largest of the commercial coal producers. Fairless' mines are owned by the steel companies.

Other operators of the northern
group were said by some industry
sources to have agreed to a 35 cent
in the wage offer. But this apparently is not acceptable to all the operators.

The southern operators have
been unable to separate themselves
from the others for two weeks ago shortly after the miners' and western operators had struck a snap.

Watch for swarms of blister beetles. Dust them with 10% DDT or rotenone.

Remove old radish or mustard plants as soon as they are of no value.

Sprinkle ashes over grain to prevent birds from eating it.

Vaccinate all calves for blackleg which were not vaccinated in the fall.

Reduce the load on the permanent pasture by shearing grazing animals such as sheep or goats or other supplemental pasture.

Save seed for fall plantings or for early spring sowing.

Water the plants to prolong life.

Seasonal equipment which will not be used again for several months should be cleaned and stored with covers partly open to avoid mildew.

Reduce the load on the permanent pasture by shearing grazing animals such as sheep or goats or other supplemental pasture.

Water the plants to prolong life.

Obviously this would mean further consolidation of the division of labor among the operators of the three power stations.

That is far from being a good solution of an economic problem.

But, half a loaf still remains between us.

NLRB Head Chief Man in Labor Law

(Editor's Note: This is the last of six stories explaining major points in the new labor law.)

By HAROLD W. WARD

Washington, June 30 — (AP)—The key man under the new labor law is the general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB).

Gloomy unionists predict he'll be a labor czar. Congressmen who backed the law said they have no such fear.

Under the Wagner act—the previous labor law which the new one changes in many ways—the big boy in labor-management affairs was the NLRB.

This was a three-man board which carried out the Wagner act. This old board had a general counsel. He was really a servant of the board.

The board, in labor disputes, acts as an investigator, prosecutor, judge and jury all in one.

That great power of the board was one of the reasons the Wagner act, passed in 1935, has received so much criticism all through the last 12 years.

But the new law makes big changes in the board and its powers.

The three-man board now becomes a five-man board, all members appointed by the president. But much of its power is taken away.

The new law provides for general counsel, too.

Because of the powers and responsibilities given the new NLRB, the over-shadowed Labor Department shrinks to not much more than an agency for gathering statistics on things like wages, employment, etc.

He'll decide whether to prosecute a union or employer before the board—which will sit as judge—and his decision is final. There's no appeal.

The fields in which he'll operate are pretty much wide open and uncharted.

The law itself makes hardly more than passing reference to the job of general counsel.

It will take time to decide just how much power he has—or how much he may feel entitled to as-

Hair-Piece Shames Nature

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

Envied girls with long, luxuriant hair?

Don't be. Shame nature for her stinginess by pinning on a hair piece which so often looks more spangled than girl's very own. Your added glory can have length and thickness that would evoke sighs from Rapunzel.

One of the most popular hair-pieces going to the heads of glamour girls today is of dresses and gowns, especially, is the "Alice-in-Wonderland" fall. This can be any length a girl wants her hair to be.

Such a backdrop, designed as a cover for hair that grows slowly or breaks off, fastens at the crown with a comb. When matched in color and texture to a girl's own hair, it's even the gimlet-eyed can tell where the hair begins and the wit-maker's art begins.

Caring for the pin-on piece is no trouble, stylists say. They maintain that the "fall" can be dry-cleaned with any non-inflammable cleaning fluid. Laid out on a towel, the piece will dry quicker than your own hair.

When permanent curl in the hair-piece vanishes, new curl can be put in with regular curlers. You roll up the strands of a "fall" just as you would your own hair.

place, creates a new agency called Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

This new agency, whose job will be just the same as the conciliation service, is set up outside the Labor Department.

So Secretary of Labor Schlesinger, member of President Truman's cabinet and head of the Labor Department, if left with a skeleton department,

The old NLRB, which has to wind up Aug. 22, has on hand about 5,500 labor disputes still unsolved. At the rate the old NLRB has been going, it can't clean them up by Aug. 22.

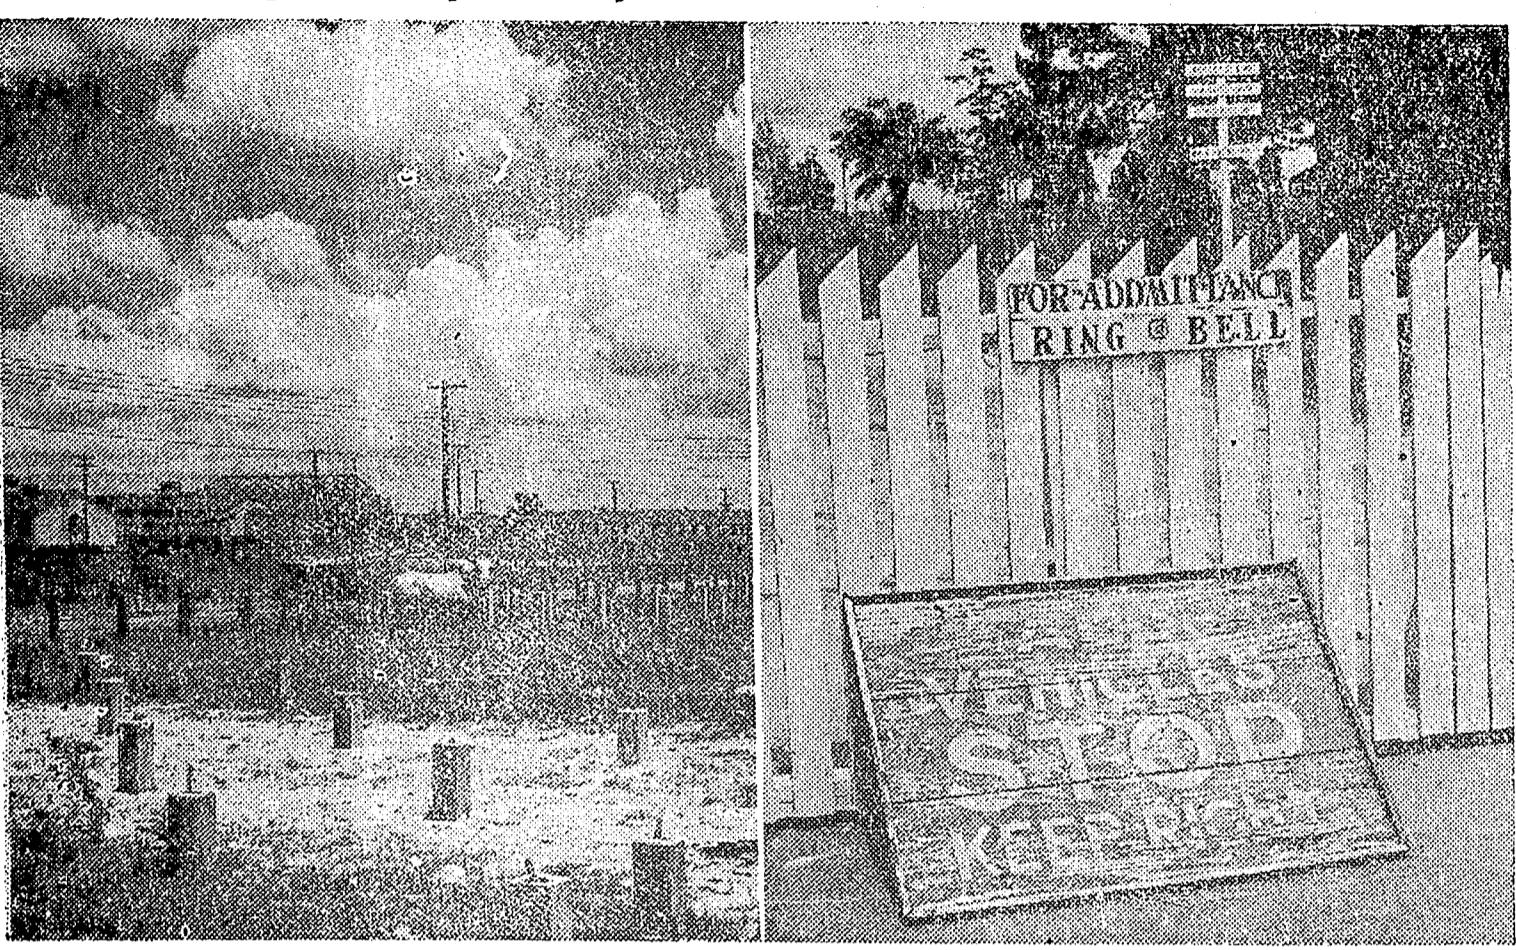

The old board hopes that some of them will be dropped by unions and employers.

This service, made up of experts in labor-management relations, had the job of trying to help unions and employers settle disputes.

It couldn't control the terrible anything. It could send its experts to try to get both sides to reach agreements in the quarrels.

The new law wipes out this conciliation service and, in its

Once Huge Army Camps Now Deserted

A slate-grey Brahma bull, left, lords it over big, deserted Camp Claiborne, Louisiana, war-time training base, where General Omar Bradley commanded the 82nd Airborne, and where the 101st Airborne, 103rd Infantry and others trained. The camp is being dismantled for salvage and the Brahma now claims the former hospital area for his grazing grounds. Many changes have also taken place at Camp Beauregard, Louisiana. The busy main entrance, where thousands of GIs entered their war-time training, is now open to "door bell admittance only. The crowning insult of all . . . ADMITTANCE is misspelled." —NEA Telephoto

Truman Dislikes

ing basis, one administration supporter in the House said privately he looked for the president to send a highly critical message to Congress.

Mr. Truman technically has until midnight Wednesday to make his decision on the bill extending controls through next February, but the White House indicated the president likely would act today. The present law expires at midnight tonight, and any delay would leave a gap with no federal controls.

The House member who predicted presidential acceptance represented Mr. Truman as particularly critical of the section allowing permissive rent boosts up to 15 percent in exchange for leases running through December, 1948, and another section lifting most building controls.

However, Senator Hawkes (R-N.J.) who recognized the 15 percent clause, declared that the cases it contemplates "are strictly a voluntary agreement." He said that any landlords who use them "as a weapon of coercion" would violate the law, assuming the president signs the measure.

In addition to the 15 per cent permissive increases, the compromise bill provides that:

1. Advisory boards be set up in each of the approximately 600 defense rental areas in the country. These boards are authorized to recommend increases in ceilings or outright abandonment of controls in their areas. The boards' recommendations would become effective automatically in 30 days unless rejected by House Expediter Frank J. Corman, who also is rent administrator.

2. Rent controls be lifted immediately on new housing, hotels, newly-rented dwellings and remodeled or reconstructed housing accommodations.

3. Government restrictions on all construction except amusement and recreational buildings, such as theaters and swimming alleys, be scrapped. Corman has estimated this would release a backlog of $2,000,000,000 worth of commercial construction.

4. Eviction proceedings be placed under individual state laws, with the following grounds for eviction set forth: (a) Failure to pay rent; (b) Violation of the "obligations of tenancy" such as destruction of property; (c) Committal of a nuisance or use of a building for immoral or illegal purposes; (d) Decision of a landlord to occupy a dwelling himself; (e) Sale of a dwelling for occupancy by the purchaser. Long waiting periods and a provision for an OPA eviction certificate are eliminated.

We are still suffering from a critical housing shortage. Even this inadequate law represents fewer dangers than with the complete lack of rent control."

Mr. Truman said he was forced to sign an unsatisfactory price control law last July 25 "in order to prevent complete destruction of price control."

"But," he said, "effective price control was impossible under the new law."

The president said that if he had vetoed the rent bill the prospects of another measure being sent to him was "negligible."

They had no choice but to sign."

Mr. Truman also protested the virtual elimination of controls which have prevented the diversion of building materials from homes to non-essential and deferrable construction.

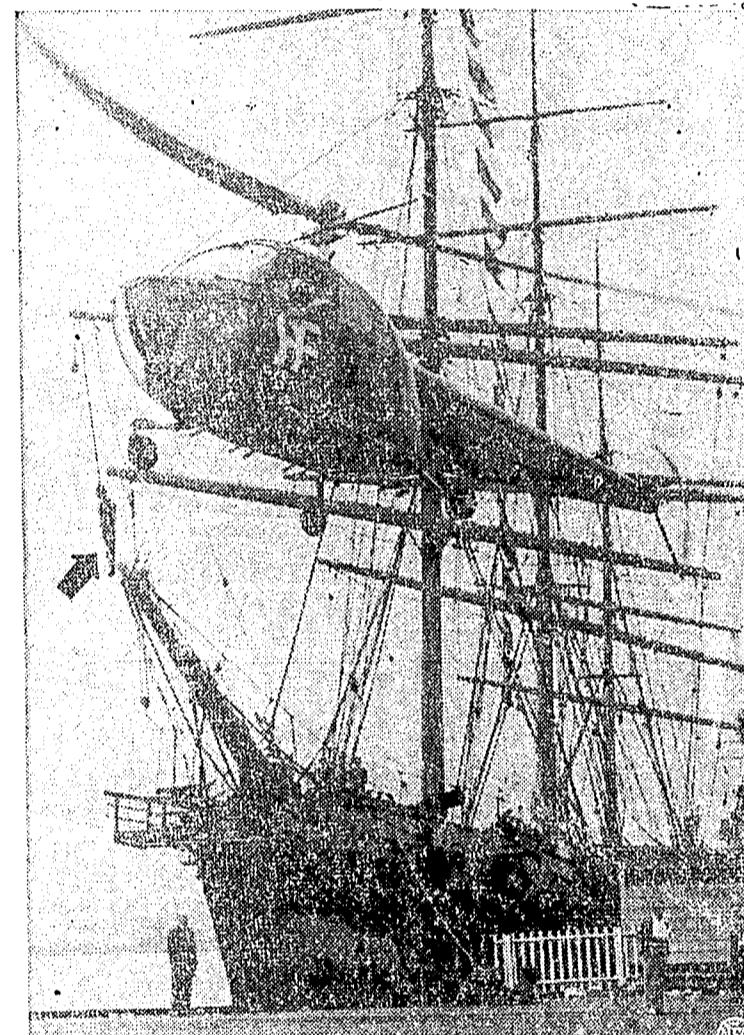

This reference was to a provision in originally relaxing restrictions covering all construction except amusement and recreational buildings.

It was "deep concern" to him, Mr. Truman said that "this most unsatisfactory law represents the only major action taken by the Congress this session with regard to the housing problem which confronts the nation."

The provision permitting "voluntary" increases of 15 percent where landlord and tenant agreed on a lease through December 31, 1948, the president said, "is voluntary only so far as the landlord is concerned." He commented:

"The lease tenant will naturally fear that unless he enters into such a lease he will be subject to even more exorbitant increases when ended."

And in Only 61 Years!

Transportation's advance in the past 61 years is graphically shown in this picture from the Long Beach, Calif., Port-O-Trade Exposition, as the ultra-modern helicopter carrying visitors around the harbor hovers over the Pacific Queen, a clipper built in 1886 for the Honolulu-to-New York sugar trade. Arrow points to a dummy hanging from the clipper's yardarm, apparently a demonstration of old-time marine law in operation.

Marines Move Their Families Abroad

Washington (NEA)—Marine dependents have big post-war problems solved for them.

They don't have to worry about a place to live when they join their husbands. From China to Cuba, from Argentina to Peleliu, wives and children of Marines on occupation duty are moving into neat new homes.

They don't have to spend months looking for houses or apartments either.
